It was first believed that only three children perished in the flames but doctors examined the bodies more closely and found the charred remains identified as one child actually were two. Nikita Spills the Beans

Now we have it direct from the head man. Communism is not Utopia. Nikita Khrushchev himself said it. The fact, itself, is not news; but the red boss' recognition of it very well may be.

Utopia has meant many things to many people. Sir Thomas More coined the word in 1516 to describe an imaginary island that had ideal conditions of government and economy. Through cynical usage it has become to mean no place.

Many communist apologists have attempted to sell the heavy-handed totalitarian state as Utopia, but now, it seems, Khrushchev is willing to set them straight. He must know, he runs the outfit now.

However, Nikita was not acting in the pure pursuit of truth in his statement. He was trying to set the Chinese reds straight in their experiment of communal living and to deliver a cautious slap on the wrists of their leaders.

The reds are uprooting family life in ancestor-worshiping China to organize their teeming masses more efficiently. What opposition they have met, and it apparently is considerable, they have handled with characteristic dispatch. It is estimated by veteran foreign observers the price in lives for this program, if liquidation continues at the present rate, will mount to some 150,000,000 people.

The figure must stagger even Khrushchev. He had a hand in communizing Russian farms. The price of that experiment was 15,000,000 lives and then it was discontinued or altered.

It seems appropriate that the form of living which gave Mark's philosophy its very name should have such a history of complete failure. The first experimenters were Frenchmen who formed short-lived communes and left their mark only in the world's dictionaries.

The United States in the 19th century was a hot bed of communal colonies. A vestige of a typical American commune is the wooden bower standing in High Cliff park, the sorry remains of a "free love" settlement that appeared in 1833 and quickly dissolved.

Our native communes, similar to the early French experience, were doomed by public pressure and censure. Apologist historians apparently make a good case on this point, but even in areas of favorable attitude, such as some parts of New England and certainly the Russian farmlands, another force worked toward their col-

That force was 'an internal thing outraged in the long run by the denial of family life and the relegating of individuals to ciphers and cogs.

Looking back at the failure that bloodied his hands, Khrushchev knows the horrible Chinese experiment is destined for the same ignoble end after the sacrifice of even more lives.

The dignity of man as an individual is more than a philosophical tenet. It is a solid fact to which thousands of Chinese today are being asked to give the ultimate testimonial. World public opinion must convict red China even as the bloody butcher of the Ukraine has done.

College Regents Should Serve the State

It has long been the custom in Wisconsin to name college regents from the localities in which the several state colleges are. There has usually been one regent from each city in which a college is located and they, with one regent at large, make up the Board of Regents. Gov. Nelson will have two appointments to make shortly, one from River Falls and one from Osh-

The governor has taken note of the practice of appointing one from each college city and recognizes that it is a tradition which has many faults but he says he will go along with it. The chief criticism of this system of making appointments is that each regent becomes in a way a captive of his home community and of the management of the college. He feels bound very often to fight for special advantage for his own school. In doing this he often engages in logrolling with other members of the board agreeing to support improvement in another college provided he gets help for something he wants in his own. This practice is obviously not in the public interest. The ideal setup would be to have regents who are interested in all of the schools and who devote their energies to serving the interests of the state and the students in all colleges with special favors for none.

However, it is not an easy thing to regents. Gov. Oscar Rennebohm in his final term named a Madison man to the board to fill a vacancy which had previously been held by a man from LaCrosse where one of the state colleges is located. But the senate refused to go along on the appointment college in their home town nor do they yield easily to pressures from people in the community. They are leaders and rise above such hazards. This has been quite clearly indicated in the recent history of the college regents in Wisconsin and there is every reason to believe that it will get better in the future. Thus Gov. Nelson need not avoid River Falls or Oshkosh in seeking candidates but it is very important that he get the very best he can from those two and the name of the Madison man had to be withdrawn and a man from LaCrosse was finally nominated and approved by the senate. But that is not the only difficulty in the way of selecting regents. It would be an odd thing indeed if none of the 12 appointive members of the Board of College Regents should be named from any of the cities where colleges are. Indeed such a ban probably would be less satisfactory than the present system of resident di-In recent years governors have gone a long way toward solving this problem by selecting regents of high caliber. Such regents are not the tools of the faculty of the communities.

Police Work That Succeeds

Good police work is very often just a matter of blundering straight ahead, examining all sorts of miscellaneous facts and finally hitting the right one. The course may not be logical.

Tactical police work may be nothing at all like the examples set by the motion picture detective who cuts his way through a great mass of confusing facts to the logical conclusion. If the practicing detective were to point out a culprit and say, "Arrest that man!" and logic told him he was right, he would be pointing in the wrong direction about 90 per cent of the time. Good detective work was credited with the solution of a $73,000 bank robbery in Massapequa, N. Y., recently. Within a few hours of the holdup, three of the robbers were captured in the act of dividing the loot in the home of one of them. The fourth, Thomas Parks, a plumber, was already in custody but he had been picked up as a suspect in a case not related to the bank holdup.

There had been a series of loan office holdups in the vicinity prior to the bank robbery. In these holdups some of the victims had been tied with handcuffs. Parks had been arrested as a suspect in the loan office robberies because someone had informed the police that he had ordered a pair of handcuffs from New York. The tip was a false one but in checking it out the police learned that he had been hanging around a certain tavern.

The police visited the tavern in the early hours of the morning. The first floor was dark but there was a light upstairs in the tavernkeeper's residence. Entering quietly the police found three men dividing the loot. They were captured and implicated Parks.

It was good police work but not very logical. The police thought they had the goods on a loan office bandit and in checking out his story they stumbled onto the bank robbers with the loot. But who can argue with success?

Khrushchev said the Soviet Union had agreed to the foreign ministers meeting "and now we are awaiting a reply from the west." "We understand they are

sisted that any thought of an ultimatum or deadline on West Berlin on the part of the Soviet Union was "a distortion by the west." Questioned on the status of Soviet troops in East Berlin if the Kremlin signed a separate peace treaty there, Khrushchev said they would remain until agreement is reached with North Atlantic Treaty Organization nations for joint withdrawal of NATO and Warsaw pact troops.

"We will not unilaterally withdraw our forces, nor will we again unilaterally reduce our forces unless the other side takes some similar action."

A Wonderful Story...Told in Silence!

There are many ways, certainly, to describe the quality of the great Cadillac car.

But we think no one tells the story quite as well-or quite as convincingly-as the car itself. And how does a Cadillac put it? Well, the next time you are in the "car of cars"-just listen! Listen to its absolute freedom from vibration. Here, it says, is the kind of craftsmanship that can only come from years of devotion to the very highest quality ideals. Then listen to its extraordinary freedom from wind noise. Here, it says, is true perfection in styling-as scientifically sound as it is majestically beautiful. Or listen to the incredible quiet of that great engine. Here, it says, is truly masterful engineering-with every phase of the car's performance working in perfect harmony. . And listen to the marvelous manner in which it closes out the sound of a city's traffic. Here, it says, you will find perfect serenity and security throughout even the longest of journeys-a wonderful sanctuary in a busy world. Yes, just listen-and we think you'll agree that the Cadillac story is never more eloquent than when told by the "voice" of its own silence.

In fact, we earnestly suggest that you visit your authorized Cadillac dealer very soon-and spend an hour or so in the driver's seat.

You will find that your dealer is long practiced in the art of satisfying a motorist's personal needs and requirements-and he will make you his welcome guest at any time.

President's Speech On Military Affairs Careful of Ban

Washington - There's one point that is more important than anything else in the controversy over speech to the Lawrence nation on Monday. The point is whether the next war is going to be a nuclear, all-out war or just a limited war.

Guessing Game If you ask anyone in the top level of military men here whether the United States will be fighting an all-out war or a limited war, the answer given is that nobody can ever tell in advance what the enemy will choose to do.

What would the position of the United States, Britain and France be if an attack came and the enemy didn't use nuclear weapons? Up to now this: question has always been answered by saying that in war the objective is victory and that, since nuclear warheads are used by ground armies, it would be difficult to keep from operating on a nuclear-weapon

Pimientos Add Zest, Color To Casserole

Casserole cooking is no longer new, but new casserole recipes are exciting. Here is an especially nice one-good enough for company and a treat for the family.

In it are shrimp, mushrooms, sherry and rice, all in a well-seasoned sauce, and bright red pimientos for their color and zesty flavor, which make this dish different.

Like all good casseroles, it is a make-ahead dish, needing only to be reheated before serving.

Shrimp-Pimiento 2 pounds cleaned shrimp

1 cup chopped mushrooms 1 4-oz. can or jar pimientos 4 tablespoons butter

3 tablespoons flour

1 cup sherry 2 cups evaporated milk

1 teaspoon grated lemon

rind 1 teaspoon rosemary

cups rice

11 cups water

1 teaspoon salt

1 teaspoon onion juice ½ cup celery, chopped

1 tablespoon chopped pars-Parmesan cheese

Melt butter, add flour to make smooth paste. Stir in, evaporated milk, cooking and stirring until slightly thickened. Add sherry, mushrooms, pimiento, lemon rind, rosemary and shrimp. Remove from heat.

In the meantime cook rice in boiling salted water to which is added the celery, onion juice and parsley.

Place layer of rice in greased casserole, then add layer of shrimp mixture. Repeat with rice and shrimp mixture. Sprinkle with Parmesan cheese and bake in 350-degree oven for about 30 minutes.

Ginger Fruit Compote

Good to round out hearty meals are light desserts of fruit. Ginger Fruit Compote is a tasty finishing touch. Drain syrup from canned purple plums and pineapple tidbits into a saucepan. Season to taste with ginger; heat. Pour over the plums and pineapple; chill. Just before serving, add cubed unpeeled apple. Serve with cookies, if de-

Opera 'Wozzeck' Considered One of Great Musical Triumphs of Century

New York - W- Visitors to New York and radio listeners across the United States are having a rare chance to hear one of the great musical triumphs of this century - the German operatic masterpiece "Wozzeck."

Study Personality The June graduate should study her own personality and potentials. If she is interested in Red Cross work or public service work she should realize she needs maturity, a somewhat objective approach to her work, ability to manage a business, dedication and a willingness and know-how of work with people. Above all she needs training and experience to make her potential worthwhile, says Appleton's director.

Miss Osborn does not spend all of her waking hours working for the Red Cross, however. She has belonged to various clubs and civic organizations, among them the mental health board, Business and Professional Women and her church. She enjoys sports and attending good plays. Her hobbies include sewing, knitting and painting.
